GLENDALE'S TV STATION EARNS FOUR EMMY NOMINATIONS

GLENDALE, Ariz. – Glendale 11 TV has once again received honors for its top quality programming by the Rocky Mountain Emmy Awards, earning four nominations. The awards ceremony will take place Saturday, Oct. 24 in downtown Phoenix.

The Emmy Awards recognize and reward excellence in television broadcasting. Glendale 11 is competing against TV stations, production houses and advertising agencies from five different states and is nominated in the following categories:

- Arts/Entertainment – A story featuring musicians from the Glendale Jazz & Blues Festival. Produced by Julie Watters and Troy Browder.
- Special Event Coverage – A 30-minute show featuring the 2008 Glendale Glitters Festival. Produced by Glendale 11 staff under the supervision of station manager Laurie Berg Sapp.
- Environment – A 30-minute documentary called 'Glendale's Home Green Home' about the construction of an environmentally friendly Habitat for Humanity Home built in two weeks in downtown Glendale. Produced by Julie Watters and Gary Stafford.
- Writing - For the 30-minute documentary 'Glendale's Home Green Home' produced by Julie Watters and Gary Stafford.

"It is an honor to be one of only three Arizona government stations contending for Emmy honors," said Laurie Berg Sapp, Station Manager for Glendale 11. "The award nominations reflect the station's goal of delivering informative, innovative and entertaining programming to residents and visitors."
